Rubin-Zyndorf, LPA, PC has been successfully representing individuals in legal matters for the past twenty-five years. We provide quality, affordable legal services to clients throughout Lucas County and Northwest Ohio, and to many motorists who receive traffic tickets or are injured while traveling through Ohio.

Our firm has excelled in a broad range of legal areas. We are tough, aggressive, and move cases toward resolution whether through trial or settlement. We have successfully obtained recoveries for clients injured or killed in all types of accidents.

Plaintiff personal injury and wrongful death cases can be difficult. We know how insurance companies and lawyers on the other side think. Their goal is to minimize their economic exposure by undermining each aspect of your claim. Sometimes an insurance company's tactics go so far as to be a matter of "bad faith" or "fraud." We have a reputation as tough negotiators on our clients' behalf and we are not afraid to take a case all the way to a jury verdict if that is in the best interest of our client.

Our attorneys are experienced at navigating the bureaucratic process that governs workers' compensation. We know what must be done to protect claimants' rights, comply with the applicable time limitations, and maximize the chances of receiving an award of benefits.

As a family-oriented firm, we also provide our clients with expert services in the areas of:

Personal Injuries of all kinds

Family Law, including Divorce, Child Support, Custody and Visitation, Adoption, and Paternity

Traffic Matters, including DUI and BAC Offenses

Bankruptcy

Real Estate Transactions

We are proud of our reputation in the legal community. We regularly travel to meet with clients in hospitals, nursing homes, or their homes. We listen, advise, and counsel because we care about the client as well as the case. We are confident that we will successfully meet your legal needs.

Truck Accident

As qualified 18 wheeler accident attorneys, we can tell you that truck accidents are among the most disastrous types of accidents to occur on the road. Truck drivers bear a large amount of responsibility in ensuring that their vehicles are properly maintained; they are capable of driving; the conditions are fair enough to be driving; and that they are capable of following all traffic safety regulations while conducting their large motor vehicle. Unfortunately, with the burden of tight time deadlines and unexpected delay periods due to unforeseen road closures, weather conditions and more, drivers are sometimes put into situations where they feel it is necessary to compromise the aforementioned responsibilities to get their load from point A to point B on schedule.

This means they might pass up, on inspecting their tires every couple of stops, or perhaps that they drive more over the speed limit than they should. Perhaps they skipped a night's sleep to stay on schedule or decided that the rain wasn't strong enough to hold them back. In any one of these situations, the probabilities of an accident occurring increase, which is what leads to so many truck accidents.

Toledo Industrial Accident Lawyers

Working in an industrial setting carries certain risks that you won't find in a commercial work environment. Employees are exposed to various technical working conditions on a day-to-day basis that include large machines, fast-moving industrial vehicles, heavy loads, and hot moving parts, to name just a few items that may contribute to those higher rates of risk. These risks sometimes lead to injuries, which can change your life forever. An industrial accident attorney from the Rubin & Zyndorf Associates law office can help you understand what rights you have as an employee or guest of the industrial premises to file a claim for a defective machinery or an unsafe equipment injury. These occurrences happen all too often, and the company is often liable for not preventing them from occurring by properly labelling hazardous areas or maintaining an industrial area that is up to the standards of safety that are required by law.

Defective machinery accidents occur when industrial machines malfunction, causing severe and traumatic injury to the victim. This is considered to be a type of unsafe equipment injury. Dismemberment, concussions and head/brain injuries, and sometimes even death can result from these types of mishaps, leaving the victims incapable of returning to work, and sometimes, tragically, families grieving the loss of someone they loved and depended on.

Our industrial accident attorney will work with you on a professional and compassionate level to make sure you understand all of your rights and how to identify and fight for the proper amount of compensation you are owed to pay for your medical bills, lost income, and more.

If you live in Toledo, OH and you have recently fallen victim to a defective machinery injury or any other type of unsafe equipment injury, contact Rubin & Zyndorf Associates today to find out more about how you can bring some fair closure to your circumstance and fight for the best possible outcome. You are already dealing with a lot of stress and pain – it is time to let a professional help you see what options you have and how to best win!

Construction Accidents

If you are a construction worker and you have recently suffered an injury while on the job, then you should waste no time in contacting a construction accident attorney at the Rubin & Zyndorf Associates.

Workplace accidents are often the result of hazardous and unsafe working conditions. It is the responsibility of your employer to ensure that all safety measures are being implemented and maintained throughout the construction process. All too often, these types of measures are overlooked and lead to disastrous injuries for some of the workers on the site. Construction sites are more prone to unsafe conditions than typical occupations, which is why working with a scaffold accident attorney can be such a great advantage in helping you find proper compensation for your injuries.

Construction site injuries can be very serious, lead to very large medical bills, and can sidetrack you for very long amounts of time. You deserve to receive compensation that goes beyond the current medical bills or what the insurance company says they can give you. You deserve more, and a construction accident attorney from Rubin & Zyndorf can help you reach that goal to help ensure that you recover money to pay for your medical costs, emotional costs, and the cost of lost income from not being able to go into work. It is enough to have to deal with the pain of the injury and the stress from being out of work during recovery time.

Third Party Claim

If you have been involved in a car wreck and are seeking the assistance of an accident lawyer who can help you prepare for a 3rd party claim, then contact the Rubin & Zyndorf Associates as soon as you possibly can. Time is very important when it comes to handling these situations. The truth of the matter is that there are a lot of people out on the road who are not very well adept at driving. Some people choose to drive while tired, drunk, or in an agitated state of mind, which increases the risk of causing a car accident significantly. Other people think that they will be just fine driving through the rain or snow. Some people simply don't conduct regular maintenance on their car, leaving them prone to popped tires or faulty braking mechanisms. Other common driver distractions include texting or use of cell phones, taking eyes off the road, or speeding not to be late for work.

Hurt On the Job?

Premises Liability

Premises Liability occurs when someone is injured as a result of a defective or dangerous condition or defect that is present on property owned and/or controlled by another individual or company. The law imposes a duty of care upon the owner of property which he or she breaches by allowing that condition or defect to exist or by failing to take timely measures to correct the defect. As a general rule liability for an injury due to defective premises rests upon the person who has control and possession of the premises. Furthermore, even if an owner is not in possession of the property, there still may be liability for injuries if they allow a defective condition to exist while knowing, or through the exercise of reasonable care, should have known exists. If the defective condition is open and obvious to the person injured then there generally is no liability.

An Untimely Accident

While you are healing, the bills keep mounting. What you don't realize is that the healthcare system is broken. If you have a claim against the party that caused your injuries, your own health insurance company generally has a claim against that same party for reimbursement of the medical bills they have been called upon to pay. Not only that, your own auto insurance carrier has a similar claim. In Ohio, most people only carry limited coverage for accidental injuries. If the health insurance carrier and auto insurance carrier are allowed to stand in the same line with you to receive compensation from the other party's pocket, your interests must be maximized to ensure that your own interests are preserved.

At Rubin-Zyndorf, we are shouting every day for people to stop and call us before making a fateful decision to settle. Once you settle, it is settled for all time. Call us if you have a claim to assert, or even if you are at the point where you are ready to settle. We work hard to secure the monies our clients deserve over the interest of competing insurance companies. The process of securing insurance benefits is complicated, but dare say it is not made so by attorneys, nor by doctors. Complication is a contrivance of the Insurance Lobby that puts greed on a higher level than humanity. Remember that the next time you are in need of an attorney.

Were You Injured At Work?

If you've suffered in injury while working, Ohio has a Workers Compensation benefit system which may be available to help you. Worker's Compensation is a system set up by the State of Ohio to compensate an employee who is injured while working in the course and scope of his employment. This system compensates an employee for injuries that are related to their employment, regardless of whether the employer or the employee was at fault for the injuries. Workers compensation normally covers all medical expenses related to the injury along with compensation for lost wages but there is no compensation for pain and suffering. There are several different types of benefits available, including, temporary partial and temporary total disability, permanent total and permanent partial disability. Benefits must be applied for timely manner. Many times claims are allowed initially for certain conditions but other conditions arise as a result of the injury that will not be compensated unless there is a timely application for the additional condition(s).

You Can't Afford to Guess

As an attorney, I receive dozens of telephone calls daily from desperate people looking for answers. Their questions are as diverse as you can imagine. One asks about a recent work injury and whether she will be compensated. Another asks whether an argument that resulted in a black-eye will result in criminal charges. My elderly mother broke her leg in a fall, but I can't take time off-work to help her. Why did my insurance premium increase when I have never filed a claim? The doctor was rude to me when I asked him why my incision wasn't healing. I filed a grievance through my union, but nothing happened. The car accident wasn't my fault, but my insurance company won't pay. They say I over-treated, even though I was following my doctor's instructions. The insurance company paid me some money and said my claim was settled, but I'm still getting medical treatment. Can they do that? A pop bottle exploded and I got glass in my eye.

Ironically, with so much information at our fingertips, you would think that decision making would be easy. It is not. Information saturation has degraded our basic ability to make reasoned decisions. We live in a marketplace of ideas, where everyone competes for attention with catchy one-liners. Googling the internet brings up thousands of information hits, all of which have some relevance in varying degrees, but most of which are of little value and in actuality, are nothing more than distractions. The normal tools of reason are no longer effective in navigating through the maze of our society's complication. When it comes to legal matters, what on it's surface appears to be relevant is typically irrelevant, and vice versa.
